A REVIVALIST'S TALE

Hospital Guide Foundation (HGF) is a NGO which is founded by Indritha Singh D'mello an Oxford graduate who is the grand daughter of Raja Pratap Singh of Kuchaman and daughter of Rajkumari Priti Pratap Singh one of the last descendants of Mira Bai. Her father Late Rudolf D'mello an Oxford graduate himself was an ambassador to Cuba and a politician who was actively involved in the freedom movement of Goa. HGF's vision is to revolutionize health care in India. It is a free service that does not charge its members nor does it have any commercial transaction with suggested healthcare providers/ Doctors, hence ensuring unbiased suggestions. Driven by three core values Ethics, Competence and Compassion, HGF's current core service is providing healthcare solutions by referring members to Doctors. HGF affiliates itself with practitioners after doing a reference check. Every request is studied and evaluated before suggestions are given. This also involves deciphering the specialty the patient needs to be referred to from the many super specialties that are proliferating. With overlaps in super specialties sometimes it is even difficult for Doctors to suggest the correct specialty the patient should be referred to. This methodology gives the patient a better chance for the initial diagnosis to be correct and to seek good advice. Currently, HGF has more than 700 Doctors on their database and are serving Delhi, Mumbai and Bangalore. HGF does not address emergencies.

Being a stringent form of a NGO, a Company under section 25 for charitable purposes, gives HGF credibility not only domestically but internationally. This license is granted by the Central Government after a rigorous process and it involves strict provisions relating to maintenance of accounts and audit. This form of a NGO has the most reliable organizational structure amongst NGOs in India. Hospital Guide also has a citizen journal's forum on facebook with more than 50,000 plus members and prominent Doctors. According to Dr. Ambrish Mithal, Chairman and HOD, Diabetes & Endocrinology. "This is the first forum to give a voice to patients and suggest suitable options." Hospital Guide Foundation's advisory team has people like Dr. (Prof.) Ranjit Roy Chaudhury, who was conferred the Life time achievement award in healthcare by FICCI in September, 2013.
